

A note from Chef Benjamin:

When I first came to Chen Chow Brasserie one of the first relationships I formed was with Rob and Angela Mardigan. I was impressed with their knowledge and love of food, their graciousness, and their love for life. Based on this, we decided to create a roll in their honor and named it the Mardigan roll. We form it in a teardrop with nori on the outside, king crab, avocado, spicy mayo, and oboro. I planned to keep it on the menu for a month but it quickly became one of our most popular rolls and it is still there today.

Chef Hong Sik Eum, the talented sushi team, and I would like to create another roll for one of our guests. But for whom..... Maybe, you could tell me? Please email me and tell me of your relationship with Chen Chow Brasserie. I will choose an email and you will be invited in. We will sit down with the sushi team and design a roll for you which will appear on the menu.

At Chen Chow our goal is not to feed you or to pour you a drink. Our goal is to build a relationship with you, our guest, and show you a venue where you can enjoy anything from sushi to private events to clever cocktails to parties on Saturday nights, to tasting menus, to Happy Hour. But, this relationship will start with an email.

Dig this:

In less than two weeks, we at Chen Chow will celebrate perhaps the two best things to come out of the 1970s: Kung Fu movies and funk music. Our potions and elixirs will keep you copacetic for the duration of the gig. Step inside our Samurai Starship and freak the funk until the Shaolin Soldiers have defeated the Jive Turkeys. May the funk be with you.
